

Leather (Hiro) Wallet 10-12-2025:

Bitcoin is the most popular cryptocurrency not just because it is the first, but because it is the perfect store of value. Often dubbed digital gold, Bitcoin is often associated with long-term investments or financial storage. Meanwhile, other blockchains have thrived for separate purposes like NFTs and dApps. Bitcoin wasn't designed with these capabilities in mind. However, today, you'll find a number of protocols introducing new assets and functionalities to the chain. Two of these assets you may have heard of include Bitcoin stamps and Ordinals.

Leather (Hiro) is a non-custodial software wallet for BTC and alternative Bitcoin assets. Today, it's probably the most popular wallet for managing alternative Bitcoin assets such as Ordinals, BRC-20 tokens, Stamps, and Runes. But of course, you can also use Leather to deposit, view, create, trade, and transfer assets on the Bitcoin mainnet. It also supports Bitcoin layer 2 chain Stacks, with support for the Lightning network coming soon.

Apart from these main uses, Leather aims to give users access to hundreds of decentralized apps. Some of these applications include NFT Marketplaces like Gamma, and Magic Eden, and decentralized exchanges such as ALEX and Velar. In short, it's a highly versatile wallet that offers ways to get involved with the ever-growing ecosystem.

Formerly known as Hiro, Leather was originally released in December 2018. It was primarily designed to be compatible with the Bitcoin blockchain and Stacks, a Bitcoin Layer 2 solution.

In August 2023 Hiro became Leather Wallet during a major rebranding. This was following the acquisition of Hiro Systems PBC by Trust Machines. At this point, it had amassed over 375,000 installations, 100,000+ monthly active users, and transactions exceeding 300,000 monthly. The browser extension version operates via your web browser. Currently, it's supported by four different browsers: Firefox, Chrome, Brave, and Edge. With this browser extension version, the private keys to your account are locally encrypted within your browser's data storage.
